Movie review

The film "Contagion" directed by Steve Soderbergh in the year 2011 was a very informative and impressive movie. It was right exactly like a rival between humans and virus. It was said to be developed in Hong Kong. At the beginning due to the death of the wife and son of Mitch Enhoff [Matt Damon] people started to know about the deadly virus. People were panic stricken. It started to become a pandemic. It was moreover not being able to be controlled at the onset. The virus kills every person contradicting it within 4 days so it came to be known as an opportunistic infection. Within in 133 days it spread to more than millions of people. This situation grew very serious. Thus, the title "Contagion" suits very well. All the characters such as Anna Jacoby, Kate Winslet, Laurence Fishburne, Jennifer Ehle and so on all enacted their part extravagantly. Have they found the vaccine for it? How many people died off it? Where did this come from? Do you want to get the answers for these, then watch the movie.
